CLAPHAM COMMON MURDER.

CONVICT REPRIEVED.

A LARGE PETITION.

LONDON, April 12.

Sir John Morison, who was convicted

and sentenced to death for the murder of an old man on Clapham Common on New Year's day, has been reprieved, the sentence being commuted to penal servitude for life.

A petition signed by 70,000 people was presented in favour of a reprieve.

WHY THE REPRIEVE?

NO REASONS DISCLOSED.

LONDON, April 13.

The reasons for the reprieve of Morison

are unknown.

The newspapers report the fact that at the conclusion of the trial Mr. Justice Darling pronounced sentence of death, but that the sentence was commuted to penal servitude

for life, without any explanation being given.

The fact that the sentence was commuted

to penal servitude for life, without any explanation being given, has caused much speculation as to the reasons for the reprieve.

DISASTROUS TORNADOES.

TWO TOWNS DEMOLISHED.

MANY LIVES LOST.

NEW YORK, April 13.

A tornado completely destroyed the town

of Big Horn, Oklahoma. Ten persons were killed.

A relief train has been despatched to the scene of the calamity. All communications have been cut.

The town of Whiting, Kansas, has also been demolished, houses being wrecked.

Many people were killed and injured.

The wife of one farmer was swept from the steps of her home and carried half a mile away, where she was afterwards

found dead.

The Eskridge school was wrecked, and dozens of pupils were injured.

One pupil was killed by the collapse of the Halloway school.

The total death-roll is reported to exceed 20.

SOUTH AFRICAN UNION.

POSITION OF RHODESIA.

LORD MILNER'S VIEWS.

LONDON, April 12.

Lord Milner, in the course of an address

at the Royal Colonial Institute, said that the inclusion of Southern Rhodesia in the South African Union was imminent, but it was highly desirable that it should first

be given time to develop.

The problem of Northern Rhodesia, he added, was a difficult matter. It was questionable whether a tropical dependency

would be a desirable addition to the Union.

An alternative solution might be found in the mother country and South Africa forming an authority to control the country

north of the Zambezi, including the Soudan.

JOURNALISTICA A GLOBO

TO THE ASSOCIATION

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The Registrar of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration, Mr. Stewart, has to-day treated the application of the Australian Journalists' Association for registration as an organisation under the Act. Mr. F. Brennan appeared for the applicants, and objectors were represented by Mr. Duffy, for the Sydney Daily News, Mr. J. H. M. Schult for the "Argus" proprietors, Mr. J. A. Lewers for George J. Heave and other Sydney pressmen, and Mr. W. H. Smith for the Australian Writers and Artists' Union.

Mr. Brennan read a reply to the objections by Mr. H. H. H. (the secretary to the plaintiffs association), in reply to the objections of the "Argus" proprietors and the other bodies. He said that the rules of the association provided for the qualification of members was internationally wide, and framed with the object of admitting all bona-fide journalists in the main, and not to limit journalists in the main, and not to limit the rules of the association. The fact that there were some who were not bona-fide journalists was not a ground for argument against inclusion, as every one was competent of persons performing dissimilar

Mr. Duffy said the Sydney Daily Newspaper Association did not approach the matter in any hostile spirit.

tion of journalists might be very desirable indeed. He would propose to Mr. Brennan that the association should consider suggestions he would like to make, and that the association should either wholly, or to some extent, alter the constitution, so as to bring it within the scope of the association.

in the scope of the Act. He did not think the total or partial adoption of the suggestions

The Registrar: I am very glad to hear this, and I think it would be very good for the association to consider the suggestions. I don't know whether the Registrar has any opportunity yet to consider the questions.

Mr. Duffy: I think when they see me they will accept the suggestion.

The Registrar: It seems to me that an amicable agreement would be reached. Mr. Duffy said it might well be coming to this. I don't think that I have never contemplated that there should be any hostile parties. I think that it would range them on different sides of the question of a quarrel. It could not be expected that capital and labour, and masters and men would all join the same organization. In the newspaper, first of all, they had the editor, who represented the proprietor of the journal. He carried out the general policy of the paper. There were a vast number of men engaged in the production of a newspaper. There were those who had no voice, and those who were leaders of the staff—and then there came the proprietors, who were the owners of the newspaper. I was one of the few who had the administration of the journal, the editors and the staff, and the proprietors.

ed according to the rules, no one could be a member of the association, unless he could principal portion of his livelihood from writing for the press. A large amount of writing done for the press was not done by persons who made their living from journalistic work.

The Registrar. This association is entitled to say who shall join, and I don't think we can force them to take in anyone.

Mr. Duffy referred to the rule which prevented civil servants and pensioners engaging in press work. This rule would probably make the registration illegal, but he thought it had no combination of persons with the intention of preventing any persons carrying on any business that was lawful, and that their mere failure to register was not an offence.

not do so without the imputation of illegality.

Mr. Duffy: It is highly desirable that editors should be struck out, as they really represent the employers. Then we would strike out the sub-editors, leaders of the press, and we would present the policy of the paper to the public—the reader writers.

Mr. Schmitt said his clients did not come in any spirit of hostility. They, however, objected to the joining together of a number of men to show interference with the press, and regarding the prevention of Civil Servants and pensioners doing journalistic work he supported Mr. Duffy. The rule was contrary to law.

Mr. Freeman: I don't think the clause will be entered on.

Mr. Lewers said his clients' objections were the same as those put forward by Mr. Schmitt. Mr. Mitchell said he was not in a position to so that there would be no doubt that the organization would act on trade-union lines, and that the W.A.I. believed that most of the rules would be altered in conference, but there were two or three rules they wanted altered at once.

The Registrar adjourned the further hearing of addresses till May 1. At the suggestion of the Registrar, Mr. Mutch and the representatives of the association met him in conference during the afternoon, and discussed the points at issue between the Society again and the association.

UNITED WORKMEN.

At a largely attended meeting of the United Workmen's League on Wednesday night, April 22, was voted towards the important trade union of Melbourne, the Victorian union, a resolution, by which, after passing the British society to celebrate, had it was desired to hold the matter over until the time was taken on the referendum. The Victorian Union is expected to be allowed to organize the movement and pattern in wholesale houses in Melbourne with the shop assistants. It was said that the Victorian Union should visit Newcastle, and provide a report for submission.

A POST-OFFICE GRIEVANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I was advised by telegram last Saturday that a letter, containing a cheque of £500, had been forwarded to me from Goodnight, and should arrive here on Tuesday morning. I received some notices from the doctors at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, and some more at the midday delivery, but the letter containing the cheque was not received until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Now, all these letters came down by the same train, which leaves Birmingham at a clock on Monday, consequently it took 24 hours to complete the sorting. The date matters, therefore, but in no case does it show that a letter could only come the one way, it shows that a careless state the Post Office has.

I am, etc. FRANCIS BACON.
